To whom it may concern,

Anglian Water has today launched a consultation on its proposals to relocate its Cambridge Waste Water Treatment Plant to support sustainable growth in Cambridge.

The shared planning service for Cambridge City and South Cambridgeshire has recently published early proposals for a new low-carbon city district near Cambridge North station, including 8,000 new homes and 20,000 new jobs in a draft Area Action Plan (AAP) for North East Cambridge. The draft proposals are being considered by councillors ahead of full public consultation later in the summer.

Regeneration of the area requires our Cambridge Waste Water Treatment Plant to be relocated. The new, relocated facility will continue to provide vital services to Cambridge and the surrounding area in a modern, carbon-efficient waste water treatment plant, which will be developed by Anglian Water in collaboration with the community.

The project forms part of a Government funding initiative – the Housing Infrastructure Fund (HIF) – which helps to deliver new homes in areas of high demand. Since the announcement in March 2019 that HIF funding will be awarded, we have been engaging with Cambridgeshire County Council, South Cambridgeshire District Council and Cambridge City Council.

We are undertaking three phases of consultation for the project during 2020-21, commencing in July 2020. During each phase, we will seek the views of the community and stakeholders including statutory consultees, non-governmental organisations and local interest groups. We will also be holding a series of community consultation activities, to present our proposals for the relocation project and to invite members of the community to discuss the proposals with the project team and ask questions.

We will ensure that our engagement activities and consultations remain fully accessible if restrictions on social gatherings due to COVID-19 are still in place.

Our phase one public consultation will run for six weeks, closing on 19 August 2020. We welcome all comments during our consultation period. We attach a stakeholder briefing pack, which describes the background to the project, what we will be consulting on and our consultation process.

Our dedicated project website www.cwwtpr.com goes live on 08 July where you can find out more information on the proposals and provide feedback. We welcome all comments during our consultation period.

If you would like to discuss the proposals with the project team, please do not hesitate to get in contact with us using the details provided below.
