

The Critical Role of Key Biodiversity Areas (KBAs) in tackling the nature crisis

KBAs are the most important places in the world for species and their habitats. Identifying and safeguarding them is central to global efforts to tackle the biodiversity crisis - and secure the benefits that these priceless places provide to people and nature.

Join CEOs from the KBA Partnership for a special event to showcase the successes of the first five years of the KBA Programme and outline the key role KBAs must play in the new global framework for nature.
